AgMarket.Net® To Host Winter Conference in Downtown Nashville

Pack your cowboy hat, boots and get ready to hit the road with us! AgMarket.Net®, the farm division of John Stewart and Associates, will host an upcoming conference, “Farming for Profit, Not Price” in the heart of Nashville this winter.

Dave Hightower, commodity research analyst and founding principal of The Hightower Report, will give his market outlook and strategies based on the world macroeconomic and geopolitical picture. Drew Lerner, senior agricultural meteorologist and founder of World Weather, Inc., will detail the weather forecast for the United States and other key-producing regions. Brian Burke, president of John Stewart and Associates, will examine the cash-grain outlook and issues traders face with spreads and basis.

Jim McCormick and Matt Bennett will talk through the Supply and Demand factors. They will discuss how and why to position trades and farming strategies around the volatile markets farmers face. Brian Splitt will present the technical outlook for the markets and how to build strategies which make sense and manage risk.

As a bonus, we will host an educational session on basic option strategies and technical trading.

Plus, you won’t want to miss the “Markets and Music City” Social Hour, an opportunity to build stronger relationships with farmers and producers in attendance as well as AgMarket.Net® and JSA staff members.

Gear up for a rip-roaring time in Nashville along “Broadway” while you focus on managing risk and farm profit margins. There’s plenty to do for any guest you bring to this prime location in the city.
